Chris Holloway was called “the Pavarotti of Sacred music” by the late Dr. D. James Kennedy. A classically trained tenor with an impressive list of opera credits, Chris has performed opposite famous music stars such as Beverly Sills, Placido Domingo, Zubin Metha, and Jose’ Carreras just to name a few. This operatic tenor has always sought to bring professionalism to the music of his ministry that exudes excellence while touching the very core of ones heart.

General Boykin shares how his foundation of faith—while challenged and even broken—was restored and became the life-blood to bring him through unimaginable circumstances to a rich and inspiring life. In the end, the general realizes his life would have gone very differently, most likely tragically, without his faith.

message with the world: “You must be willing to try faith God’s way, not yours.” He encourages a “ramped up” approach to sharing the gospel and shares how his newfound faith has impacted every facet of his life.

Dr. Scarborough is performing. He has also been featured in numerous periodicals including Time Magazine, People Magazine, The Houston Chronicle, USA Today and the Kansas City Star, and has appeared on many national programs including James Dobson, Fox News and Larry King Live. A revised and updated edition of his Best-seller “Enough is Enough” will be available later this summer in bookstores.

Chris is committed to use his musical gift to minister God’s love. Amid a busy schedule of church services, concerts, and travel time with Vision America, Chris finds joy in sharing the gift of music.

In 2002 Chris and his wife Sasha founded the inspirational concert ministry known as “Opera Leggera” (Light Opera). Chris’ ministry can be frequently viewed on the TBN, CBN and Church Channel Television Networks.
